In Memoriam

JOHN MacDONALD, CLASS OF 1960

Fast as the rolling seasons bring
The hour of fate to those we love,
Each pearl that leaves the broken string
Is set in friendship's crown above.
As narrower grows the earthly chain,
The circle widens in the sky;
These are our treasures that remain,
But those are stars that beam on high.

—O. W. Holmes

We Dedicate

DURING the past three years we have come to rely upon the Guidance Department for personal and scholastic counseling, testing, educational information, vocational placement, course selection, and the many other needs arising in our rapidly-changing lives. Thanks in great measure to the wisdom and understanding with which these services were rendered, we have successfully reached an important milestone in our progress toward adulthood. In grateful recognition of the contribution which they have selflessly made to our achievements, we the Class of 1960 proudly dedicate this record of our high school careers to Miss Virginia Nye and Mr. Walter Gutterson.

Administration

The crowded situation at Weymouth High School has forced the class of 1960 to spend its high school years under far from ideal conditions. Although perhaps we have not done as well as we should like, we hope that you will feel that we have done our part to help you prepare yourself for what ever plans you may have for the future.

I should like to congratulate the class upon the outstanding manner in which it has accepted the situation and cooperated with the faculty in making the operation of the school as successful as it has been. It is not difficult to understand your choice of motto, for certainly your attitude and conduct at school have shown that you have already accepted "God our guide, Democracy our pride" as a motto to live by. May you follow it even more vigorously in the years to come.

I wish you happiness and success in your future endeavors.

The students of Weymouth High School are indeed fortunate to have teachers who go out of their way to teach far more than the three R's. In classrooms they have strengthened our sense of honesty by showing their trust in us. As advisors for extra-curricular activities, they have given us opportunities for furthering our interests, and an insight into teachers as friends in informal situations. Finally, as coaches and assistant coaches of our various athletics, our teachers have instilled a strong school spirit in all of us. For this, and so much more, our thanks go to all the teachers at Weymouth High School.

NATIONAL DECLINE: Historical Precedent

PHILIP DOUGLAS WALLS

The government is a vital part of life to all of us. We act according to its laws, pay taxes for its upkeep, and are protected in its strength. It is so important to our well-being, that we serve and die for its continued success. The need to preserve and perpetuate our nation, therefore, claims portions of our work and devotion throughout our entire lives as citizens. Will that toil of former generations of American citizens be wasted through public error in the next fifty years? This is the question which concerns us today, to which a partial answer may be found in the past.

Around 1000 B.C. the inhabitants of Rome were hardy agrarian folk who waged war every summer, but had to support their families with their own labors. They became strong through hardship, and lived to maturity only if they were able to conquer the rugged environment. These were the kind of people who established the Roman republic in 510 B.C. and expanded their community into a world empire.

The early Romans believed in their country's destiny, fought for it, and loved their pagan religion sincerely. They were for the most part honest citizens, who were willing to work for what they received. Until the end of the Third Punic War in 146 B.C., all Roman men served in the army, took pride in their government and sought a national peace by conquering all their opposition. The Romans were cruel sometimes, and were relentless fighters, but they succeeded in their dreams of power because they were better fighters and better administrators than any of their foes. How, then, could such a country ever be defeated?

Primarily, Rome was destroyed from within itself by causes of its own making. Christ once asked, "For what shall it profit a man, if he shall gain the whole world, and lose his own soul?" Indeed, the Roman Empire acquired the world, then died from a cancerous soul.

For after Italy had been subdued, and the danger of war removed from Rome itself, much political disunity began to work its way into Roman government. The aristocrats and the plebians fought each other bitterly for control of the senate, while ambitious leaders like Julius Caesar usurped control from both factions. The country was torn time and again by civil war and insurrection, while riot and assassination were common political tools. These internal battles robbed Rome of foremost citizens like Cicero, and they dealt the final blow to Roman democracy. A populace either too weak or too indifferent to govern itself was the avenue by which the infamous emperors came into power.

Not only was Rome depleted by civil war, but new attitudes toward work and conduct played large roles in deciding its future. The increasing size of the empire brought into Rome much new revenue, which fell into the hands of a select class of society called knights. These knights, the financial backbone of the country, learned to despise work and enjoy all the luxury their money could buy. They pacified the large poor classes, many of whom were then being fed by the state, with public games and elaborate festivals. Their influence helped to transfer the power of the empire from the people to the monarchy over which the people had no control.

Thus, this great nation toppled because its foundation was undermined by military failure, civic disunity and political corruption. Basically, however, the empire's fall came about because the people of the empire misused the privileges and rights it presented to them. They once had the privilege of deciding how to run their government. They once were able to approve or veto legislation, and they could at one time pick vocations through desire and custom, not through necessity. Yet they lost all these ideals and forfeited their freedom when they ceased to sustain that kind of government which had guided them to success. If history is to be of any value to us, we must accept its lesson and inspect our actions for those flaws in our society which destroyed such a stalwart nation as the Roman Empire.

NATIONAL DECLINE: Trends in America

DIANE JANE BROWN

"Americanism means the virtues of courage, honesty, justice, truth, sincerity, and hardihood — the virtues that made America. The things that will destroy America are prosperity-at-any-price, safety-first instead of duty-first, the love of soft living and the get-rich-quick theory of life."

This passage might well have been spoken by a prominent political leader in Rome, 1600 years ago, substituting the word Roman for American; and, yet, it was said only forty years ago by President Theodore Roosevelt. We have seen that Rome was destroyed because it lost its high sense of human values. Is America likewise suffering from the same debasing condition? A way to determine our standards of living is to examine carefully certain fields of significant importance to the usual American. This will reflect us and reveal those notions which prevail in the United States.

Any nation, in order to survive for any length of time, must maintain a sound, uncorrupt government. It must be run by loyal, intelligent people, who are more than willing to give their time, effort, and talent for its maintenance. We may ask ourselves, "Are all those Americans who possess qualities of leadership rendering their service to our country? Or is their failure to participate allowing men of less noble motivations to insinuate themselves into office and hamper the effectiveness of our government?" Moreover, where are the people when the opportunity arises to choose competent leadership? In 1956 less than 50% of the people cast their votes at election time. One out of every two Americans takes his responsibility as a citizen so lightly that he neglects his right to choose his representative in government. People seem to be too "wrapped up" in their own affairs to care even about the welfare of their country. They have the rights, but they lack momentous responsibility.

This irresponsibility in a people becomes even more serious when its effects are revealed in the country's youth. Last year 42% of all the major crimes—murders, assaults, auto thefts and other felonies—were committed by children under eighteen years of age. It has been proven that the major cause of this delinquency is the failure of parents. Why doesn't this condition awaken the nation to new responsibility and concern? Again, the people seem to be indifferent and insensible to the prevalent deterioration of our modes of conduct.

Furthermore, the home itself is now subject to new degenerating influences from other community factors. The entertainment industry idealizes violence, crime, and sexual aberration. Literature, art, drama, movies, and now television put too much stress on the wrong subjects. Many a large newspaper regards sensationalism and crimes of passion as the only news of paramount importance. Our present standards have brought new highs in illegitimacy, a crushing burden of divorce, and a greater psychiatric caseload than ever before. While the ultimate responsibity may well lie with those directing these activities, these degradations would not be exhibited if the people themselves did not encourage them by their indulgence.

Another field that is rapidly deteriorating is that of advertising. The Federal Trade Commission announced recently that advertising abuses were at an all time high. Men, acting as doctors in order to sell a medical product, enjoy public deception for private gain. And too many people are willing to perform and lie on a quiz show as long as they receive their compensation. The arts of deception have clearly won an honored place for themselves. Indeed, they have been nourished by practices that have become normal in our American society.

As this period of decline progresses, the American seems to remain in a state of complacency. Conformed to pattern, he is content to squander his increasing leisure and opulence on the trivial if not the harmful. If this is true, are we not then following in the same steps as Rome and other civilizations? If America is to emerge above this fast depreciating era, each and every individual must be willing to accept his inherited responsibility and set high standards of values for every aspect of his personal and public life.

NATIONAL DECLINE: Our Challenge

MURDO MacRAE DOWDS, JR.

THE PATH LEADING to national self-destruction, the decay of a nation from within, is now more clearly defined. The fall of great nations in the past was caused in part by two factors which are also at work in the United States today. These factors are, first, a lack of respect for work, and second, a general attitude of indifference and irresponsibility for the welfare of the nation. Does this mean that our nation will inevitably fall, that we will live under the rule of a conquering enemy? History seems to support such a fall. However, many feel that it can be avoided if the American people take positive action now.

The American attitude toward work is a serious threat to our national welfare. With the introduction of the production line into industry has come a corresponding disappearance of "pride in workmanship." For many Americans, their vocation has become merely an unpleasant necessity of life to be completed as quickly as possible. The result has been a trend toward mediocrity.

The selection of a job which may become your life's work is a problem facing all of us within the next few years. Our field of endeavor, whether it be nuclear physics or auto mechanics, social work or motherhood, should interest us, provide personal satisfaction, and perhaps most important, should be pursued for the benefit of the society as a whole rather than for purely selfish reasons. It is also very important that we make the best of whatever job we undertake. We must make it a habit to do more than the minimum required of us, even if it means looking for things to do. We must use our increasingly abundant spare time to the best advantage.

For our nation to survive, we must throw off the cloak of irresponsibility characteristic of present American society and once again take interest in its future and, more important, accept responsibility for its future. Perhaps the first area of responsibility necessary to national preservation is the home. It is our sacred duty to our children not merely to feed and clothe them but to teach them all that will enable them to sucessfully take over after our time. It will not do to delegate this job to the Cub Scouts, Sunday School or school Guidance Department. These are all fine organizations, but they cannot do the job of raising children. It is up to the parent to instill in his child the virtues and characteristics of good and responsible citizenship.

Furthermore, each American has a responsibility to the society. It is that of providing a healthy environment, both moral and physical, in which to live and work. This means actively attacking the forces which tend to destroy society. It means working to rid the community of crime and all influences which tend to debase and corrupt and spread immorality. It means removing from business and organized labor the threat of gangsterism. It means calling for wise and effective control of the diversified yet tremendously influential advertising media. It means, in fact, striving for the very best society possible.

Irresponsibility for government affairs is perhaps the greatest factor leading to national collapse. It must not be forgotten that government is a function of the people. Especially is participation of the people necessary in a democratic form of government such as ours. It is the direct responsibility of each one of us, first, to be informed about matters of government; second, to participate in government; and third, to encourage others to participate.

It cannot be stressed enough that the future success or failure of this nation depends upon each of us. It is not enough that we think patriotic thoughts and hope someone else does our job. We must each act and act now. This change in attitude cannot be put off any longer without serious damage to our way of life. Until we accept this responsibility and run our lives accordingly, this nation will continue to decline. The future of the United States of America is in our hands, not as the Class of 1960, not as the younger generation, but as individuals.

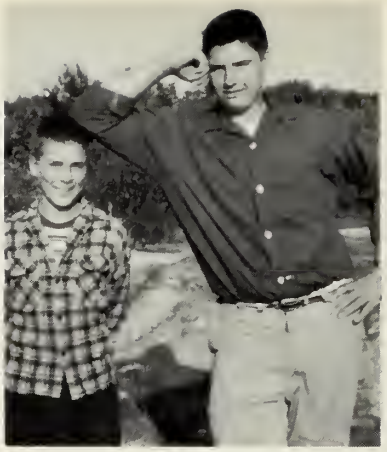
VOICE



The Good Old Days . . .

When we did all the crazy things teenagers do, things that will leave a lasting impression on our memories. Oh, those days in the warm summer sun, swimming or just enjoying the great outdoors – and the hilarious disguises we dressed in for Halloween.

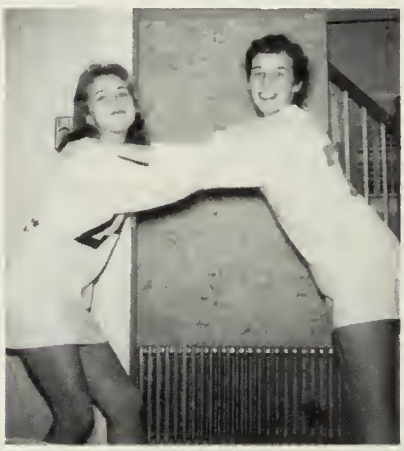
The spirit of football was contagious, spreading from our cheerleaders, through parents and even non-high schoolers.

Lunchroom labyrinth.

It must be here.

M-m-m-m MacIntosh!

Exodus.



"Pajama Game."

Monkey Shine!

School life holds many fond memories as well as sleepless, fattening, and just plain enjoyable pajama parties.

The gay nitey!

Pyramid of pulchritude.

Pieca pizza.

Brusha - brusha - brusha.

Minuet.

Noise and fun máde our party tres gaie.

Icebreaker.

Elvis Pretzel.

The children's hour.

The par 3.

The get-together with the fun loving crowd when we just acted ourselves and had the times of our lives will be forever remembered.

"Oscars."

Chow hounds.

GRADUATION

Michael Brophy, Class Marshal.

After three years at Weymouth High School, we now find ourselves walking to our homerooms for the last time. Our steps are a little slower and our spirits sadden as we recall the fun and activities which made the corridors ring with laughter. Tomorrow we shall meet as a class for the last time. With our pride in the past, we have faith in the future. This is graduation, 1960.

The last steps of our high school years.

Elaine Baxter, Class Marshal.

The Class of 1960.

Off to work.

JUNIORS

Just plain confused.

The "Doll"-ton gang.

Clambake.

As we near the end of our junior year, we pause to look back over the first two years at Weymouth High School and to prepare ourselves for the one ahead. Double sessions have made our school days shorter but yet left room for activities and fun. The parties, the football games, and various classes have left in our minds experiences and happiness which will never be forgotten.

Late for the bus.

All jammed up.

Sadie's got her man.

Tango anyone?

W-e-l-l!

The mad hatter.

Oh, my back!

On the beach.

"Coketail" party.

SOPHOMORES

And if I'm elected . . .

The happiness twins.

Oh, you beautiful doll.

All hands on deck.

Meringue-oo-tang.

King size.

The Lone Ranger.

LAST September we entered Weymouth High School as sophomores. Since then many memorable incidents have been added to our lives – experiences which will be multiplied in our junior and senior years. Here we met new friends from different parts of Weymouth, but unfortunately our association with the upperclassmen has been limited because of double sessions. Nevertheless, our first year at Weymouth High School, although confusing at first, has been enjoyable and profitable, causing us to look forward eagerly to next year.

Our hearts were young and gay.

The shaggy dog.

Yea, South!

THE COLLEGE COURSE here at Weymouth is set up as background for students planning to go to college, nurses' training school or business school.

Since most colleges have the same requirements, there can't be too much variety in the subjects offered; however, Weymouth succeeds in keeping the curriculum interesting. For instance, this year a language laboratory was opened and the new calculus course was firmly established. This calculus course presents an opportunity for the advanced student to omit preliminary math courses in college.

Although the college course requires extra work from the student, his efforts are usually climaxed by his being admitted to the institute of his choice.

BUSINESS

Our future draftsmen.

BETTER business leaders make a better America!

Weymouth High School business students are trained in the basic fundamentals of office work: bookkeeping, typewriting, shorthand, commercial law, and modern office machines. During the year the students have the opportunity to listen to men of business from banks and insurance and utility companies. They also listen to informal talks on office etiquette and business attire and view films pertaining to business.

Seniors whose marks are of good quality are placed in positions whenever possible. We certainly know that these students will be well-prepared for their vocation in the world of business.

VOCATIONAL

INDUSTRY and agriculture play most important parts in the field of trade today. The Weymouth High School students of the Vocational and Agriculture School are well prepared to meet the needs of their trade.

The courses prepare boys for careers in the skilled trades. With experienced tradesmen as teachers, the boys are trained for direct entry into industry. At the same time the students receive an education in English and the social studies.

All Weymouth High School Vocational graduates have an appraised reputation for achieving success and advancement in the trade that they studied at Weymouth High School.

FEW STUDENTS realize how very active the Student Council of Weymouth High School is. They see only the dances planned by the hard-working Dance Committte and the busses that the Student Council arranges for football games.

Under the surface of the Student Council is a hard-working core of members who carry out their various responsibilities with great competence. Some of their many activities are selling school stationary, giving cards and flowers to students who have illness or sorrow, and sponsoring the cheerleaders in the National Cheerleaders Association. They also give a Thanksgiving basket to a needy Weymouth family and a $500 scholarship to a deserving Senior.

These accomplishments were made possible by the capable direction of Mr. Horrigan, Advisor, and the officers, Karin Hanson, President; Richard Murley, Vice-President; John Striano, Vice-President Pro Tempore; Diane Brown, Recording Secretary; Elaine Baxter, Corresponding Secretary; and George Hurst, Treasurer.

FROM COVER to cover the 1960 Campus represents the many hours of work invested by the Yearbook Staff and its very capable advisors, Mr. Dolan and Mr. Kearney.

One of the many "firsts" attempted in the 1960 Campus, which makes it appear more attractive, is the omission of advertisements in the final section.

The art staff spent much time in designing the lovely white cover and the pages, many of which are in three colors.

The other staffs were kept equally busy in finding quotations, proofreading, pasting, working on club write-ups, and carrying out numerous other detailed tasks.

Mrs. Masters, Advisor.

THREE important principles are given in the teenage code, written by the Junior Moral and Spiritual Values Committee. They are to honor God, to keep America strong, and to make the most of yourself. This code was given to all Weymouth High School students with the hope that they would read it and abide by its rules.

In addition to the code, they sponsored the Senior Prayer Contest, held special campaigns such as the lawn saving program in the Spring, put mottoes in our study halls, wrote Reflector articles, and presented the Americanism Award.

Under the guidance of Mrs. Masters, Miss Toomey, and Student Chairman, Anne West, this committee has made tremendous progress in reaching its goal, that of making Weymouth High School outstanding. They have made students aware of the pride which comes from being part of this school.

CAREFUL! Someone is watching you. The Reflector's popular column "Winnie and Willie" has spies everywhere. This is only one section of the Reflector compiled by the hard working staff directed by Miss Andem and Mr. Dolan. The staff includes Elizabeth Hughes, Editor-in-Chief; Carolyn Andrews, Assistant Editor; Lorraine Sliva, Art Editor; Carolyn Hackett, Girls' Sports Editor; Allan King, Boys' Sports Editor; William Hurley, Photography Editor; Eileen O'Gorman, Advertising Editor.

This year's new columns, including "Teen Talent" and new story sections, add interest.

Also, students have an opportunity to submit stories and poems, enabling them to see their own work in print.

And (third row) Dorothy Burrell, Elaine Lewis, Elizabeth Ward, Elizabeth MacEakern, Ronalyn DeMeule, Karen Couture.

DESPITE the difficulties of having two separate clubs, one for the sophomores and one for the juniors and seniors, the Future Nurses' Club has had a successful year, enjoyed by all its members. A trip to the Children's Hospital, guest speakers, student nurses and films concerning the nursing profession helped both groups to understand the nursing profession better. Under the guidance of Herberta L. Stockwell, the officers have completed a successful term.

Sophomore officers and junior-senior officers are combined in some instances and separate in others. The president for both groups is Carol Guinette; Sophomore Vice-President, Catherine Mazzola; Junior-Senior Vice-President, Noel Nickerson; Sophomore Secretary-Treasurer, Natalie Roulston; Junior-Senior Secretary-Treasurer, Barbara Carlson.

THE GOAL of the Future Teachers' of America is to encourage worthwhile students to become teachers.

Under the leadership of Miss Pearson and the officers, they have seen this goal fulfilled.

The officers are:

Carole Boynton, President
Nancy Wollaston, Vice-President
Frances O'Connell, Secretary
Kathleen Davis, Treasurer
Cynthia Dibble, Program Chairman

Among the activities planned for this year were a trip to Bridgewater State Teachers' College, the winter and spring observing programs and a Christmas party.

Rita Cicchese practices teaching at a club meeting.

THE FUTURE Business Leaders of America are proud of their nationwide organization. Besides meeting monthly to hear speakers from the business world, the club has gone on field trips to the Boston Globe and various Boston business schools. In addition, the highlight of the year was their talent show.

Among its projects, the club supported the March of Dimes T.A.P. and presented an award to an outstanding senior business student.

Their advisor, Miss Dorothy MacGregor, and the officers: Marianne Potts, President; Patricia Tevan and Jean White, Vice-Presidents; Majorie Campbell, Secretary; and Betty Schauer, Reporter, have guided the club in developing a knowledge of the business world and in rendering services to the school and community.

Barbara Feneck. And (fifth row) Gail Gordon, Thelma Johansen, Carole Whiteside, Mary Moore, Patricia Teevan, Marjorie Campbell.

THIS YEAR's Senior Secretaries have ably fulfilled their purpose of assisting the faculty in the high school by typing letters, master copies and stencils, by filing, and any other clerical work assigned to them by the teachers for whom they worked. Being a secretary gives each student, qualified by having his school work approved by the advisors, Miss Norris, Miss Hill, Miss Elizabeth MacGregor and Miss Dorothy MacGregor, the experience of working for a teacher with whom they would have had no other contact.

LIBRARY CLUB

DUE TO the efficient management of Lorraine Sliva, President, and Donna Johnson, Secretary-Treasurer, the Library Club has assisted Mr. Adams by filing catalog cards, shelving books, writing overdue notices, delivering permits and notices, and stamping out and checking in circulating books. Unfortunately, because of double sessions, no activities or programs were planned, but the members gained a feeling of satisfaction by helping their fellow students.

"Aqui se hablan español" is certainly true of the Spanish Club, where all the business meetings are conducted in Spanish. The club was started to give students the opportunity of continuing their study of the language without the formality of regular classes.

Activities this past year have included a Christmas party, an illustrated talk by Miss Pearson about her summer in Mexico, and slides taken by Mr. Kearns when he was in Spain.

A successful year was enjoyed under the direction of Mrs. Derry and Mrs. Bedell, Advisors, and the elected officers: Sally Lawrence, President; Carole Norwood, Vice-President; Sylvia Humes, Secretary; Sybil Joly, Treasurer.

Left to right: (seated) Sally Lawrence, Carole Norwood. And (standing) Sylvia Humes, Mrs. Bedell, Mrs. Derry, Sybil Jolly.

In addition to serving faculty and students as audio-visual technicians, the members of the A.V. Club, directed by Mr. James Steele and Mr. Paul Cleaves, endeavor to train themselves in using the Audio-Visual equipment more competently. In order to further knowledge in this field, they attend regular group meetings where they watch demonstrations of new equipment and become familiar with technical terms.

Club members have had the opportunity to visit theatre projection booths and radio and television studios to observe the various uses of A.V. machinery. Orientation programs for Junior High A.V. Clubs have been presented under the direction of the co-managers, Douglas Fernald and Daniel Jacques.

WRESTLING has been reintroduced to Weymouth High School this year after an absence of eighteen years. It was established as a result of a school board decision to expand the athletic program and provide the opportunity for more boys to participate in competitive athletics. The team, under the coaching of Leo Hayes, is the foundation for a competitive team in the 1961-62 season. Three informal sessions were held this year with nearby schools.

LAB ASSISTANTS

STUDENTS who take a lab science owe a great deal to the laboratory assistants. These boys work hard keeping the labs clean and in order for incoming classes.

In the chemistry lab John Goddard, Peter Fickett, Kenneth Knowles, and William Marshman make solutions, fill bottles and set up the equipment for class demonstrations. Paul Hammond does approximately the same job in the physics lab.

Much credit should be given to these boys who work so hard behind the scenes in the science laboratories

EARTH SCIENCE CLUB

Left to right: William Marshman, Diane Barr, Charlotte Topliffe, Kenneth Knowles.

UNDER the guidance of Mr. Harry Morgan, the Earth Science Club has attracted students interested in exploring the study of fossils, and the history of the earth, the radioactive materials, and work involving crystals.

Expeditions to museums and field trips have highlighted a busy year under the capable leadership of Peter Fickett, President; Jeffrey Everson, Vice-President; and Ann Williams, Secretary.

Since each member of the club is able to follow his own interests in any field, some are growing crystals, others are identifying minerals by physical and chemical tests, and still others are testing radioactive substances with a geiger counter. In this way, the Earth Science Club gives geologically-inclined students an opportunity to further their interests and study.

KEY CLUB

Mr. Olson, Advisor.

MANY INTERESTING activities were planned for the members of the Key Club this year to develop the qualities of leadership and service in "key" boys and to provide vocational guidance through contacts with Weymouth business and professional men. Among the activities were visits to manufacturing plants, speakers, paper drives, and a program to be given at a Kiwanis meeting. The club will also attend the convention of Key Clubs from all over New England. These activities are planned and carried out by Mr. Harold G. Olson, advisor for the Key Club, aided by the officers:

Richard Manson, President

ORATORICAL CONTEST

Left to right: Judith Krusas, Linda Jacobson, Diane Tovet, Karin Hanson.

THE AUDIENCE was hushed; the judges were ready; eight terrified seniors awaited their turns to speak in the annual oratorical contest.

The essays, based on Americanism, were the result of much work on the part of the students, their English teachers, and Mr. William T. Kearns, Advisor.

The contest was sponsored by the American Legion to develop an interest in our way of government and to create better citizens.

The prizes were two scholarships of fifty dollars each provided by Post No. 79 of East Weymouth and the Governor Bean Post of South Weymouth.

The judges, members of the English Department, after careful deliberation, selected Barbara Gould and Nancy Wollaston as the winners, with Linda Jonason as the alternate.

"Isn't she adorable?"

"What a riot!"

"I don't know when I've enjoyed anything as much as this!"

Comments such as these buzzed around the auditorium after the performance of the Senior Class play, GIDGET, a rollicking comedy of the summer experiences of a teenage girl. Gidget was excellently portrayed by Marylou Stewart and Martha Kilman, backed by a terrific cast, directed by Mr. Longridge and the student director, Jean Dunning.

This year there was a slight deviation from the usual procedure as the play ran for three nights and gave an added performance at Watertown High School. We hope that all Class Plays have as successful a run as GIDGET.

BAND

Ready to play "Fight Maroon and Gold".

STRIKE up the Band!
Another touchdown! A wild cheer rose from the grandstand and the band burst forth with the familiar "Fight Maroon and Gold." Hundreds of enthusiastic voices joined the band in our song of victory. During the half-time the band marched onto the gridiron and stirred the school spirit of every student with their songs and intricate maneuvers. This is just one example of the band's activities.

They also make public appearances at the Armistice Day and Memorial Day parades and the Senior Graduation. There are three annual festivals at which members of the Weymouth High Band play. All these activities are carried on under the excellent direction of Mr. Paul Warren.

"DO-RE-MI" . . . Any Monday, Tuesday or Wednesday if you go past the auditorium after lunch, you're likely to hear the Weymouth High School chorus warming up. Under the guidance of Mr. Russell Jack and Mr. Paul Warren, these students find enjoyment in one of the most pleasant means of self-expression, singing. Many wonderful opportunities are available to the students in chorus, among them the chance to meet many new people at the various festivals held during the year. People come from all over New England to these festivals, bound together by one important fact — They love to sing.

ORCHESTRA

Our orchestra conducted by Mr. Jack endeavors to blend the quality of instruments and to acquaint students with various types of music. Their activities are generally confined to concerts and festivals.

One such festival was held on January 15-16 at our own Weymouth High. Students from the entire area of Southeastern New England arrived to compete. Three students, Patricia Boudreau, Elizabeth Hodges, and Marcia Auker, were chosen to represent Weymouth High and to play in the orchestra, a composite of students from various schools. Two concerts, refreshing, memorable, yet amateur, resounded in the auditorium. Superior students, one of whom is Elizabeth Hodges, will participate in the state festival.

Surely this cultural organization deserves not only our respect but also sincere appreciation.

THE MAJORETTES of Weymouth High, directed by both Mr. Warren and Mr. Jack and led by Judith MacDonald, are representative of the strong school spirit ever present at Weymouth High. The girls' intricate routines are a familiar sight at our gala athletic events.

All of us admire their talent and hope that they will always continue their exceptional work.

"Satisfied, real satisfied" . . . with this year's active cheerleaders. Not only active in cheering for our teams, but also in community service. At the games, head cheerleader, Anne West, and her squad, have led the spectators in rousing cheers to buoy the confidence of the players. They have boosted school spirit by putting signs around the school for the Thanksgiving Game, composing a poem, and staging an outdoor football rally. They also fostered community spirit by ushering at the Kiwanis Benefit. All in all, under the capable leadership of Miss Levangie, the cheerleaders have had a most rewarding year.

So near and yet so far.

A touchdown for Weymouth.

BEFORE the eyes of 14,000 enthusiastic fans on Thanksgiving Day, the Weymouth High School football team of 1959 climaxed a thrilling season by tying the Class A champions, Brockton.

Under the inspiring coaching of Jack Fisher and Leo Hayes, the boys fought hard and well for the stalemate which left the Brockton fans in openmouthed astonishment. Weymouth students are probably more proud of that game than any other for it was a stunning moral victory over our arch rivals.

Weymouth was honored this year by having three outstanding players selected to the Quincy Patriot Ledger All Scholastic Team. They were Ronald DiGravio, a terrific quarterback, Spencer Hodges, a hard-hitting tackle, and Alan Black, a great blocking end.

The line-up.

The Winter Track team guided by Coach Oral Page and assistant coaches Malcolm Pratt and Frank Cavallo and Manager Robert Slaven had a better than average season. The team was led by Captain Leonard Flathers. Outstanding seniors on the team are Leonard Flathers, Richard Houle, William Hurley, James Moore, and Arthur Bleakney. Other members of the team graduating are: Edward Frado, Alan Pearson, Bob Morrill, William Minnis, and Alan King.

Three boys who deserve special mention this year are Fred Lawrence, Don Meacham, and Charles Craig who have shown outstanding running ability. These boys lead next year's nucleus of John Bates, Jack Donovan, Bob Ralph, and George Hurst.

Left to right: Charles Monroe, Ralph Haddox, Charles Craig, John Donovan, Allen King, Frederick Lawrence.

Left to right: (kneeling) Doug Welch, Alan King, Arthur Bleakney, Charles Elliot, John Santacroce, Edward Frado, Francis O'Donnell, James Moore, Fred Murray, Oral Page. And (second row) Donald Meechum, Lester Jones, Roger Williams, Gary Brown, Frederick Lawrence, Robert Ralph, Paul Valentine, William Henshaw, Ralph Haddox, Richard Weir, Ray Neiland, Joseph Ritz. And (third row) John Ryan, Wayne Albion , William Leach, Harry Rosenthal, Richard Crosby, Robert Wreks, Ronald Belmonte, David Marani, Joseph Gilpen, Jeffrey Thunberg, Kenneth Antoine.

If you were driving along Academy Avenue one day last fall, you may have been startled to see a troop of boys in Weymouth High shorts and jerseys running down the street. However, this was nothing unusual. The Cross Country team was practicing for the coming season.

The season was highlighted by victories over Quincy, Silver Lake, and Rockland.

Among the star runners were seniors James Moore, Edward Frado, Allen King, and Fred Murray. Wayne Albion, Fred Lawrence, Don Meacham, and Harry Rosenthal should spark Weymouth High next season.

The team's head coach, Oral Page, and assistant coaches, Malcolm Pratt and Frank Cavallo, should be congratulated for their perseverance in training these boys.

SPRING TRACK

Gary Kemp.

SPRING IS here and that brings on spring track at Weymouth High. With Mr. Page as coach and Mr. Pratt and Mr. Cavallo as assistant coaches, our boys have done outstanding work.

Leonard Flathers and Richard Hoole are co-captains. Members of the senior team include James Balcom, Gary Kemp, James Moore, Alan Pearson, Arthur Bleakney, Edward Frado, and William Hurley.

Edward Frado and William Hurley are two seniors who have shown outstanding ability. David Aikens, Robert Elms, and George Jung have done well as juniors.

George Jung.

Aubrey Elms.

BASEBALL

Dick Manson.

Left to right: (first row) Gerard Lambert, Kevin McTigert, John Maloney, William Capozzoli, Clyde Hicks, Brian Webster, Donald Milligan, Allan Litchfield. And (second row) Manager, Murdo Dowds, Robert Stella, Michael Grable, Brian Dunbar, Ronald DiGravio, Donald Gustafson, Charles Elliott Thomas Burns, Coach, Leo Hayes. And (third row) Thomas Clinton, John Fay, Richard Manson, William Stella, Thomas Fay.

"TAKE ME out to the ballgame, take me out to the park . . ." The words of this song call to memory America's favorite pastime, baseball, a sport ably represented at Weymouth High School. We are all proud of the hard work and sportsmanship showed by this year's team, coached by Mr. Hayes and Mr. Dempsey. Richard Murley, William Stella, Ronald DiGravio, Richard Manson and Gerard Lambert will be sorely missed when they graduate this June, but Brian Dunbar and several other juniors who have played excellent games this year are sure to make a fine showing next year.

Donald Gustafson.

BASKETBALL

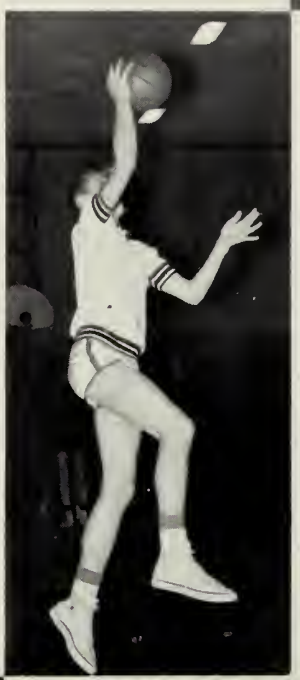
Pardon me!

THE SCORE was tied and only a few minutes were left to go. Who would Coach Kearns put in to break the tie? He and Assistant Coach Mazzola went into a huddle trying to decide on one of the following: Ronald DiGravio, Gary Kemp, James Balcom, Roger Larson, or Alan Black. It was a tough decision; they're all such good players.

His choice of Gary Kemp proved very apt as with only thirty seconds left, he scored a basket breaking the tie and winning the game for us.

Equal credit goes to the behind-the-scenes managers, Don Gillis and Bob Hawley.



Practice makes perfect.

Gary does it again!

This is one gate they'll never crash!

With the greatest of ease!

Conference.

HOCKEY TOURNAMENT

Weymouth	2	Danvers	1
Weymouth	1	Winchester	4

WEYMOUTH'S 1959-60 hockey team was the most successful team in the school's hockey history. The team placed second in the South Shore Interscholastic League and competed in the Massachusetts Interscholastic Hockey Tournament. Weymouth beat Danvers, a powerhouse of the North Shore League, becoming the first team from the South Shore League to win a game in the state hockey tournament.

Three Weymouth hockey players made the league all-star team; Stuart Fultz, Thomas Clinton, and Henry Godin. Captain, Richard Manson, and junior, Timothy Handrahan, next year's captain, received honorable mention. Other excellent senior players were Gerard Lambert, Kenneth Trudell, and Edward Perry.

CLASS PRAYER

by MARILYN BADGER

Our God,

As we stand before Thee, during our graduation ceremonies, each one of us stops to meditate in his own individual way. Dressed in our caps and gowns, we turn to Thee for direction in choosing the best roads for our future lives.

But we realize that this day is not the end of our trials and triumphs; it is rather the beginning of a life of greater responsibility, greater joy, and sorrow. As we enter into this new phase of our lives, we pray that we may utilize, to the best advantage, the knowledge which we have acquired and that we may contribute something worthwhile for the future generations.

We are thankful to our parents and teachers for their helpfulness in charting the way during our years at Weymouth High School. We are thankful that we have here found understanding friends to lighten our disappointments and failures, and to increase our sense of accomplishment.

During this moment of graduation, we stand between the past and the future. Help us to remember and appreciate the opportunities for education and friendship given to us in the past and help us to find inspiration and strength to lead meaningful lives in the future. Help us to help ourselves in time of trouble and need, and to show good judgment when burdened with the problems before us. May we look back with gratitude and forward with hope and confidence.

Amen

Acknowledgments

IN BRINGING the 1960 edition of the Campus to a close, it is fitting that we acknowledge our lasting gratitude to those whose genuine interest and assistance made this volume possible:

Mr. John MacDonald and Bay State Bindery, for their willingness to assist in whatever we proposed;

The Brockton Typesetting Company, for interrupting their busy schedule time and again to keep us ahead of our schedule;

Mr. and Mrs. John Hobbs of Hobbs Studio, whose contribution in cheerfulness and encouragement alone can never be measured;

Smith Print, for the many times their advice and assistance helped us over rough spots on the way to publication;

Mr. Robert Carr of Specialty Print, whose enthusiasm and know-how made our new cover possible;

The office staff of Weymouth High, who gave so generously of their time and talents to insure our success;

Miss Evelyn Sylvester, for many years Campus adviser, whose experience and interest were ever available and helpful;

Mr. John Collins and Mr. Herman Perry and the boys in the Print Shop, for so many times doing so much so well.

To these and to all who helped us along the way, our heartfelt thanks.
